The Madder Valley Railway was created by artist and photographer John Ahern. This charming and historically important model railway was probably the first to establish the importance of scenery to complement the trains. It was donated to Pendon Museum and is normally on static display. However, each year the trains and track are restored to running order for a limited number of days.

Celebrate Fathers Day with a visit to Pendon Museum.

In addition to the Madder Valley Railway, Pendon's own Vale of White Horse and Dartmoor miniature landscapes will be operating and the exhibition 'Building in the Vernacular' will be on display.
